Annex V – Durham Union Society Debating Equity Policy

Durham Debating is committed to providing and maintaining a safe environment for all its members. As such, we have provided this Equity Policy so that everyone may know what is expected of them as well as how to make an Equity complaint. It also details the roles of the two Equity Officers and how they will deal with any complaints.

Our policies apply to all members of Durham Debating and are in line with standard practice across the International Debating Circuit.

This policy is intended for internal use. Separate Equity Policies will be made for the external tournaments that the Society hosts, namely Durham Schools, the Durham IV and the Durham Open

The Equity Officers

Who are they?

Durham Debating has two Equity Officers, who are currently Severino Bonvini and Emma Zaoli.

They both have equal power in applying this policy and both report to the Director of Debating. They are responsible for the general welfare of all participants during practices and other debating events. Any issues that arise should be reported to and will be mediated through them.

How can they be contacted?

If you need to contact the Equity Officers at any point, you can:

- Speak to them in person
- Message them on Facebook
- Send an email
- Call them
- Use the online complaints form

The contact details of each Equity Officer has been provided below:

Contact Detail	Luca Lombardo	Emma Zaoli

Phone Number	+44 75852 343 433	+44 7541546153

Scope and Confidentiality

The power of the Equity Officers is limited. Their role extends no further than talking to the parties involved, providing mediation, and at the most extreme, removing people from debating events. They are not trained therapists and cannot provide counselling of any sort. They will not attempt to deal with issues that go beyond their purview.

The Equity Officers will endeavour to investigate all complaints while respecting the confidentiality of the complainant. However, this confidentiality may be broken if the incident is deemed serious enough. Therefore, the Equity Officers reserve the right to report any incidents they deem necessary to a relevant third party (such as Durham University or the police). They will do so if they reasonably believe individuals are at risk of harm. They are happy to continue to talk to the person making a complaint in the event that they seek a higher authority to deal with the issue.

Equity and the Equity Policy

Who does this Policy apply to?

The Equity Policy applies to anyone who is a member of Durham Debating or who attends any debate-related event. Trainers, members of the Debates Selection Committee, and the Equity Officers themselves are not exempt from any part of this Policy. Any member is able to make a complaint under this Policy.

When does this Policy apply?

Equity applies at any debate-related event, which includes, but is not limited to:

- During training sessions
- During any social events organised by the Society
- During any internal competitions organised by the Society
- During external competitions that the Society participates in
- All interactions between participants in the context of the Society and its events, including online communications

A note on Externally-hosted Competitions

All tournaments hosted by other institutions in which the Society takes part in ARE covered by this Policy. Therefore, Society members who participate in these tournaments will not only be subject to the Equity Policy of the host institution (as per tournament rules), but also that of Durham Debating.

What does Equity involve?

Unequitable behaviour encompasses a range of behaviours that can be very different from each other, ranging from entirely unintentional to purposeful, and from misunderstandings to malice. The next section outlines these behaviours in further detail.

Please note that cases will be treated based on their specifics, and that we are not implying equivalence between the behaviours listed in the next section (or even between different instances of the same behaviour).

Definitions of Unequitable Behaviour

Bullying: Repeated, unreasonable behaviour by an individual or group, directed towards another individual or group that intimidates, offends, degrades, humiliates, undermines or threatens. This includes pressuring another person or group of people to do something that they are uncomfortable with.

Intimidation: Threatening behaviour towards any individual who is part of this competition (including volunteers and support staff) such as: yelling, harassing, threatening, acting in a physically or verbally aggressive fashion.

Direct Discrimination: Unreasonably treating an individual or group less favourably than another individual or group on the basis of a protected attribute in the same circumstances or circumstances not materially different.

Indirect Discrimination: Unreasonably imposing, or proposing to impose, a requirement, condition or practice that has, or is likely to have the effect of disadvantaging an individual or group with a particular protected attribute, and which is not reasonable in the circumstances.

Harmful Generalisation: Teams will argue about different groups in a debate. These generalisations do not inherently constitute equity violations.

When would they constitute an Equity Violation?

Generalisations may constitute an equity violation in cases where they are derogatory, false, or extremely harmful. Examples might be: “Women cannot lead” or “People from X race are inherently violent”. More importantly, they can perpetuate harmful stereotypes and cause direct emotional harm to someone from that group in the room with you.

How can I avoid harmful generalisations?

- Avoid arguing in absolutes e.g. “X people will always engage in a specific action
- Acknowledge that many conditions are externally imposed as opposed to being intrinsic to any group of people
- Give reasons as to why these external conditions make a group/individual from that group likely to behave a certain way or do something
- Speak as respectfully as you would if the person you are speaking of were in the room with you

Harassment: Any unwelcome, offensive, abusive, belittling or threatening behaviour that humiliates, offends or intimidates an individual or group on the basis of a protected attribute. Behaviour that might constitute intimidation can include, but is not limited to:

- Degrading public tirades
- Deliberate insults related to a participant's person, identity or competence
- Threatening or insulting comments, whether oral or written (including by e-mail or any form of social media)
- Deliberate desecration of religious and/or national symbols
- Malicious and unsubstantiated complaints of misconduct, including harassment, against others

Inflammatory language: The use of triggering language, particularly in debates where discussion of sensitive and difficult subjects might be necessary.

Sexual Harassment: Any unwelcome sexual advance, request for sexual favours or any other unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature that humiliates, offends or intimidates a person and which a reasonable person, having regard to all the circumstances, would anticipate making the person humiliated, offended or intimidated.

- Positive Consent must always be given at all stages of any sexual encounter. This may be through words and/or actions, but it must be clear that both parties are willingly engaging. Positive consent cannot exist when someone is coerced or drunk. Consider the power dynamics of the relationship you are entering into, such as age or position of authority in debating.

Victimisation: Causing detriment to a person because that person has made a complaint or taken part in complaints proceedings under this Policy.

Vilification: The public incitement of hatred, contempt or severe ridicule of another individual or group.

Policies specific to Debates

Preferred Gender Pronouns Introductions

This policy allows all participants in a debate to be referred to in a manner that they are comfortable with. It is designed to ensure that nobody suffers the indignity of being misgendered during the course of a debate, which can be particularly important for people who identify with a gender they were not assigned at birth.

How is the policy carried out?

Once all participants are seated in the room, the chair will introduce themselves first. They will do this by stating their name and their preferred pronoun(s) and will then invite their wing judges to do the same. They will then invite each team to give their names, speaking order, and preferred pronoun(s). As debaters or judges, you should take a note of all pronouns and ensure that they are used in your speeches, in points of information, and when talking before or after the debate.

For example:

“Could I get the speaking order of Opening Government and your preferred gender pronouns?” “Hannah, speaking first, she or they”

“George, speaking second, he please”

Further notes on the pronoun policy

- It is important to note that participants are not required to state a preference. They may also ask to be referred to using non-gendered language, for instance “the previous speaker,” “the Leader of the Opposition,” etc.
- Should you accidentally misgender somebody, you should apologise as soon as you realise or are made aware. Mistakes are understandable and can be easily remedied, but an apology is still necessary to recognise the harm the person suffered as a result. Obviously, if someone feels that they were misgendered on purpose, they have every right to raise an Equity complaint.

When and where does the policy apply?

Following convention in the International Debate Circuit, the policy applies during all rounds of a tournament. For the purposes of this Policy, the pronoun policy would apply to all debates that form a part of internal tournaments.

It will not be required every time there is a debate during training sessions, as it is assumed that members will have already introduced themselves (and made clear their preferred pronouns) upon joining the Society and a particular training stream.

Though, this is not to say that misgendering will be permitted—it, like any other form of Unequitable Behaviour, is strictly forbidden and will be dealt with accordingly.

Opt-out policy

If a speaker does not wish to speak in a motion for any reason (such as not feeling well or being uncomfortable debating the motion), they have the choice to opt-out.

Given the more informal setting of debates during training, speakers can opt-out by talking to the coach running the session.

During tournaments, this usually is done by informing either the Equity Officers or the chair judge in their room. In this case, their partner can give both of their speeches and they will not receive feedback for that round. If both members of a team opt-out of the same round, they will be replaced by a swing team. Though, rules regarding the procedure for opting-out and how it can affect break-eligibility do differ across tournaments, so you are advised to review the Opt-out policy for the tournament in question for more specific information.

Accessibility as a further Equity Concern

Accessibility Requirements

Durham Debating acknowledges that adjustments may need to be made for participants with disabilities, such as the allocation of training rooms (or debating rooms during internal competitions) with wheelchair access.

If you have accidentally been placed in a less accessible room, please understand that this was not done deliberately. Either yourself or a representative (such as your partner) are encouraged to approach the Equity Team promptly so the mistake can be fixed.

Use of Electronic Devices

During competitions, following convention in the International Debate Circuit, Electronic devices are not allowed for any purpose during a debate other than looking up words via electronic dictionaries, timekeeping and note-taking.

While this policy will be less strictly enforced during training, it will hold during any internal competitions. As such, any violations of it will be treated as would any other Equity violation.

A note on General Pastoral Care

If at any point during a debating event you are in need of pastoral support regarding problems not caused by another participant (such as anxiety), please feel free to contact the Equity Officers—they will be happy to help.

The Equity Complaint Process

How to make an Equity complaint

Complaints may be raised with an Equity Officer at any time. All complaints raised are treated as confidential, and the complainant will determine whether or not a complaint is investigated further.

Complaints may be made informally or formally:

- An informal complaint is one that raises concerns, but does not require formal responses such as investigation or mediation. These may be made via any channel—contacting the Officer directly (by Facebook, Email, or Phone) or by filling out the online complaint form.
- A formal complaint is where a formal response is sought, such as investigation or mediation. Formal complaints may be initiated in person with Equity Team members, but must have a written record registered via the online complaint form to be actioned.

Making anonymous complaints

Complaints may also be made anonymously. However, for process reasons, these complaints cannot be investigated. Anonymous complaints will therefore be treated as informal, and will be used to inform future handling of Equity issues.

However, if you do wish to further communicate with the Equity Team with any concerns regarding the matter or to pursue a more expansive set of actions, please feel free to appoint a contact person who will be in charge of communicating between you (thus helping you maintain a level of anonymity) and the Equity Team.

This is a course of action one can pursue in highly sensitive cases where you would feel severely uncomfortable to identify yourself to the equity team. We will exercise discretion in deciding whether to treat it as a formal complaint or an informal one, while also taking into account preferences of the original complainant.

Complaints about Equity Officers and members of the Debate Selection Committee

No investigation into a complaint shall be conducted by its subject. The principle takes precedence over the appeals process to ensure the fair application of this Policy.

Members of the Equity Team will excuse themselves from investigating and handling complaints that are made against them personally, or where a personal conflict arises (e.g. one of the parties belongs to an institution they are affiliated with or they have a close personal relationship with one of the parties).

Therefore, if the subject of a complaint is an Equity Officer, the other Officer will investigate and the decision may only be appealed to the Director of Debating. If the Director of Debating is the subject of a complaint, the decision made by the Equity Officers is final.

General Equity concerns

In addition to complaints, members are also encouraged to contact the Equity Team to raise general equity-related concerns, even if they do not feel an incident has occurred. Both anonymous complaints and general concerns enhance the Equity Team's overall understanding of relevant issues occurring at the tournament, and will be used to prevent future equity violations.

How Equity complaints will be handled

All Equity complaints will be handled using the following procedure:

1. Initial complaint: An individual, who is either the subject of or a witness to the breach, reports it to the Equity Officer(s).
2. Investigation phase: If a formal response is sought by the complainant or deemed necessary, the Equity Team will seek to collect as much factual information pertaining to the incident as possible. This will involve speaking with the complainant, offending person and anyone else involved.
 1. Following this process, the Equity Team will determine whether or not a breach of this Policy has occurred.
 2. At any point during this process prior to resolution, a complainant may withdraw their complaint. At such a point, any investigation automatically ceases.
3. Resolution phase: If a violation of the Equity Policy has occurred, the appropriate resolution mechanism(s) will be identified and applied.
 1. The basic mechanisms include:
 1. Discussion – explain the complaint to the offending participant and have a discussion with them about why their remark or action was inappropriate.
 2. Warning – issue a warning to the offending participant.
 3. Apology – request that the offending participant provide an apology.
 4. Conciliation – bring the relevant participants together to conciliate the dispute.
 2. For more serious cases, the following resolutions mechanisms may be applied:
 1. Clashing – the trainers are not told the details of the incident, but they are instructed not to allocate that person as the complainant's partner in any practice or internal/external competition.
 2. Suspension – the offending person is suspended from training sessions and internal/external competition for a certain period of time.
 3. Ban – the offending person is banned from Durham Debating, having their membership revoked. This could lead to the revoking of their wider membership of the Durham Union Society, though such a step will necessitate the involvement of the parent society's relevant authorities.
 1. If this step is taken, neither Durham Debating nor The Durham Union Society will be held liable for any incurred losses.
 4. Involvement of law enforcement agencies.

Appealing a decision

If anyone involved in an incident feels that the decision made by one of the Equity Officers is grossly incorrect, they may request that the other Officer reassess the final outcome (provided they were not involved in the initial investigation). This may or may not involve reopening the investigation. The second Equity Officer may decide to uphold the previous decision or reach a new one, in which case it supersedes the previous one.

In extreme instances and if all other options are exhausted, a decision made may be appealed to the Director of Debating, in which case the investigation will be conducted anew. This is the final appeal available so their decision is final.

Appendix – Code of Conduct for Officers and Officials

Welcome to the Durham Union. We are delighted that you are willing to contribute to our work by taking on a position and we are sure it will be a rewarding experience. Listed below are the core values we expect all our Officers and Officials to share and actively work towards achieving. These are crucial to ensuring the Society can run efficiently and be open to all.

Dedication

Officers and Officials shall complete their duties as set out in the constitution. A consistent failure to perform duties is defined as ‘Dereliction of Duty’.

- Familiarise yourself with the duties of your officership as outlined in the constitution. Talk to former holders of that office and ensure you complete a full handover with the outgoing Officer.
- Be aware of other duties and expectations of Officers such as attending events and door duty at 24 NBC.
- Communication is key: if you have to miss a meeting, give apologies for your absence.

Respect

Officers and Officials act as representatives of the society, so shall conduct themselves with mutual respect for other Members and shall avoid bringing the society into disrepute.

- Maintain respect towards all Members of the Union and our invited Guests on the basis of age, gender, sexuality, race, ethnicity, disability, religion or economic circumstance.
- During debate it is important to respect all Members and our invited Guests right to free speech.

Inclusive

As part of the executive of the Society, it is vitally important that Officers and Officials conduct themselves in a way that creates a welcoming environment for all.

- Listen to suggestions from your fellow Officers, Committee or Members and ensure you respond to them following due consideration.
- Be aware of wider issues on campus. We strongly advise the completion of modules available on duo; these include, but are not limited to Unconscious Bias, Equality, Diversity & Inclusion, and Respecting Others.

Transparency

Officers and Officials should be transparent about any decisions being made and where possible, consult other Officers, their Committee, the Office Manager or the Trustees before reaching a decision.

- All committee meetings should be minuted as stated in the constitution, and these minutes made available to all Members in the Union Office.
- Decisions made by Officers and Officials should be explained through reports to the General Committee (if listed under the duties of your role) so they may be recorded in the minutes.

By accepting your role within the Society, it is expected that you act in accordance with the values outlined in this Code of Conduct. Failure to do so could see your position reviewed within the complaints or confidence process.

Appendix - Durham Union Society Members' Code of Conduct

Welcome to the Durham Union Society. We are delighted that you have joined and are willing to engage in discussions and debates about the big issues of our time, and we are confident that this will be a rewarding and fulfilling part of your university experience.

Durham Union Society wants every member to feel welcome and respected in every space or activity associated with the organisation.

We have a Code of Conduct, applicable to all members of the Society, which is crucial to ensure clarity about the standards of behaviour we wish to encourage and support in order to be a safe, open, inclusive, welcoming and respectful organisation.

The Code of Conduct applies to any member engaged in an activity encompassed in the Society's Constitution.

The Code of Conduct should be read as supplementary to the Durham University Student Pledge.

EXPECTED STANDARDS OF CONDUCT

The Society encourages all members to uphold values of respect, inclusion, and integrity in their actions. All members are expected to act respectfully and responsibly and engage with others in a manner that fosters mutual respect, dignity, and safety. This includes:

- Acting with kindness and consideration.
- Avoiding behaviours that might distress or intimidate others.
- Treating others with respect.
- Refraining from any form of harassment, bullying, or victimisation. We encourage members to engage with each other in a way that promotes an inclusive and positive atmosphere.
- Respecting diversity and avoiding discrimination on any grounds.
- Protecting the Society's facilities, acting with care and responsibility.
- Engaging honestly in meetings and discussions, ensuring that all statements and contributions are truthful and in line with the Society's values.
- Acting lawfully, reasonably and civilly.
- Fulfilling roles and responsibilities diligently. Expectations of officers are set out separately in our officers' code of conduct.

DISCIPLINARY MATTERS

A person shall have committed a Disciplinary Offence if they are found to have committed harmful, reckless or dangerous conduct while in the Society's Buildings or when they are engaging in purposes directly connected to the Society. Examples of such misconduct include:

- physical violence or behave in a way that poses a threat to others' physical well-being.
- conduct that amounts to harassment, bullying, or victimisation.

- a harmful course of conduct motivated by discrimination.
- a course of conduct that amounts to extortion or blackmail of another person.
- theft, dishonesty, or other behaviour that damages the Society's interests.
- being otherwise engaged in behaviour that in the view of the Trustees brings the Society into disrepute.

A person alleged or reported to have committed a Disciplinary Offence shall be subject to an investigation by a Complaints Panel. Following such an investigation, the Panel has the discretion to impose disciplinary actions, including suspension or expulsion. Further details on how this process works can be found in section (lxviii) of our Constitution.

All members are expected to uphold this Code of Conduct, ensuring a positive and respectful environment for all in the Durham Union Society.

Appendix - Society Procedure And Standards:

The Durham Union Society is an organisation fundamentally committed to promoting open, honest, and thought-provoking debate on the matters of the day. We firmly believe that freedom of expression and respectful engagement can coexist, and that robust discussion is most productive when all participants feel welcome and safe to contribute. This appendix outlines how we approach guest speakers, uphold our values, and respect our members' right to question and critique.

Speaker Expectations:

From guests and members alike, we expect all speakers in our events to behave to a proper standard: to speak respectfully and courteously at all times, to debate in good faith, to not impede on the right of others to express their views and to be generally respectful of other members of the house. This also extends to the choice of language our speakers use: we ask that speakers generally refrain from swearing or using overly explicit language and generally prioritise using polite and respectful terms when referring to their fellow speakers and their points throughout the debate, although the chair will handle questions of improper language on a case-to-case, context-considerate basis.

We expect our speakers to respect the structure of our events to the best of their ability, including speaking within agreed upon timeframes and respecting our constitutional procedures. We ask our speakers to understand that our events are invitations to dialogue, not endorsements, and that engagement with our members should be with the aim to convince and shed light on new perspectives.

We ask our speakers to accept that our members maintain the unalienable right to respectfully disagree, and we ask that all speakers come to our events with the expectation that the ideas they present will be robustly scrutinised by our members.

Member Expectations:

Members and guests are encouraged to question and critique ideas expressed at our events. We ask that such contributions remain respectful and focused on ideas rather than individuals. The Chair may manage questions and floor speeches to ensure fairness and maintain a constructive atmosphere. The Chair may also manage questions and floor speeches to ensure our events proceed in a timely and organised manner. We ask that all members generally respect the decisions of the chair.

Single-Speaker Events:

The Durham Union hosts many single-speaker events, generally in either 'address' style or 'in conversation with' style addresses. We invite guest speakers from a variety of personal backgrounds, professions and demographics to talk about their area of expertise. An invitation to such an event should not be regarded as an endorsement of a speaker or their views, but a recognition of their ability to offer a unique contribution to the knowledge of our members and a relevant insight into current issues which may challenge or broaden the opinion of our members. For addresses to the Union, we will offer guest speakers the opportunity to give a speech to the society on a subject(s) of their choosing and for an agreed length. Following this, the Chair will ask a series of questions: these are intended to respond to or scrutinise the ideas or arguments presented in the main speech.

For 'in conversation with' style events, we will offer guest speakers the opportunity to engage in discussion with the Chair on a number of pre-agreed questions on a subject(s) of their choosing and for a length of their choosing. Following these agreed upon questions, the Chair will further ask a series of questions these are intended to respond to and scrutinise or ideas or arguments presented in the previous answers.

For all single-speaker events, once the Chair has concluded their questions, the Chair will invite our members to freely ask questions to the guest speaker.

Debates:

The Durham Union hosts many debates throughout our terms. We invite speakers from a variety of political, professional and demographical backgrounds to discuss and debate a subject relevant to the day. An invitation to such an event should not be regarded as an endorsement of a speaker or their views, but a recognition of their ability to offer a unique contribution to a discussion on a subject matter, and an opportunity to present a case for any given side of a motion.

For debates, speakers will be invited either to give a speech in favour of ("for the Proposition") or against ("for the Opposition") of a statement ("motion", e.g. 'This House Regrets Brexit'). A motion is not a stated view of the Society, but a proposal the Society will hypothetically entertain in the interest of encouraging debate on a topical matter.

Multiple speakers (generally six) will be invited to give a speech for a pre-agreed amount of time. Speakers are expected to present a persuasive case for their side of the debate, critique ideas presented by the other side and offer a unique perspective from their personal insight on the matter being debated. Speeches will begin with a first speaker for the proposition, alternating between the proposition and opposition until all speakers have spoken. Speakers are expected to respect the pre-agreed speech length: exceeding this length will be indicated by the Secretary.

Speakers are allowed to offer contributions to other speeches ("Points of Information"), expressed generally by standing up and stating asking "Point of Information?" or "May I?". If invited by the speaker giving the speech, the speaker making the point may ask a question, generally with the interest of seeking to clarify or criticize the argument of the speech. Points of Information should be brief in length, and the Chair may ask a speaker to cease should their point be unreasonably long. Points of Information should not be submitted in the first or last minute of a speaker's speech ("Protected time"), which will be indicated by the Secretary. After all speeches are concluded, members of the Society will be invited to give shorter speeches for either side of the motion ("Floor Speeches"). We ask that speakers respect and engage with the floor speeches in the same manner that they would the main speeches of the event.

After all floor speeches are concluded, the Chair will invite questions from members. After the question, a speaker from the side of the debate questioned will have a brief opportunity to respond, which may potentially be followed by an equally brief response from the other side of the debate, should the question be directed at both sides, or if the question raises a point of interest to both sides.

After questions are concluded, the Chair will direct members to vote by a verbal vote ("acclamation") before then having their votes physically counted ("division"), generally by a teller by the venue's exit.

A vote for or against a motion is not a definitive position of the Society, but a recognition of which side of the house was more persuasive in their speeches.

Accountability:

The Union is wholeheartedly committed to upholding the standards discussed in this appendix, which is chiefly expressed through the power of the Chair in responding to Points of Order raised by members, officers or speakers.

If you feel that a speaker is violating the expectation of proper conduct during the course of an event, we encourage you to raise a "Point of Order" on a matter of "Improper conduct/language". This is an intervention intended to hold speakers to the respectful and convivial tone the Society seeks to uphold in our events. The Chair is constitutionally bound to consider whether the speaker's behaviour constituted a breach of this expectation, and may take action according to their judgement. If you feel that the chair has made an erroneous decision, this decision may be potentially challenging as outlined in Standing Order III, Section 5, (c) (i).

If you feel that a speaker has otherwise violated the values of our Society, or that appropriate action to counteract such a violation has not been taken, we encourage you to direct your concern to the Equalities Officer at equality@dus.org.uk, who can raise such a concern to the President and other officers to ensure it is handled in the best way possible.

If the contributions of a speaker, or the subject of a debate, have caused you personal distress or concern, we encourage you to speak to our Welfare Officer at welfare@dus.org.uk who can provide you with support, signpost you to other bodies to provide more in-depth or specific remedies and take action on your behalf from within the Society.
